2. Students (and their welfare)

General characteristics

- Yalata Anangu School is a remote school with a high percentage of school card students and 100% Aboriginal enrolment. Our students speak Pitjantjatjara and have English as an Additional Dialect.
- Yalata is situated 203 km west of Ceduna, South Australia on the Eyre Highway. Yalata is approximately 1,000km from Adelaide.
- The school has 5 classes. There are a number of Aboriginal Education Workers employed so that all family groups are represented and all classes have local community members who speak local languages. Emphasis is placed on rewarding proactive behaviours as well as maintaining a clearly defined set of consequences for unacceptable behaviour.
- The DfE student support services attend the school twice per term to work with identified students and provide support to staff
- Hand/face washing and tooth brushing program is in place across the school

Governance

- Yalata Anangu School are re-establishing the Student Voice program
- The School Governing Council has led to an increase in the level of community involvement within the school
- Schools in the ALP work in conjunction with Pitjantjatjara Yankantjatjara Education Council (PYEC). There is a three year plan linking the DfE strategic plan with the ALP plan to provide direction to individual site plans

4. Curriculum

Yalata Anangu School has a three year site improvement plan (SIP) which informs the priorities. This is included in the annual report and shared with Governing Council and the school community

Subject offerings

Students take part in all 8 areas of curriculum, Literacy and Numeracy are high priorities.

Pitjantjatjara language and culture is valued at Yalata Anangu School and supported by the Anangu Lands Partnership First Language and Maintenance Development Coordinator

Special needs

Aboriginal students who are assessed as at risk are a priority for this school. Funding is provided to support students who are identified through data collection of NAPLAN testing and EAL/D Scales.

Special curriculum features

All staff have the opportunity and are encouraged to receive training and development in catering for the particular needs of all students. We work closely with Department for Education Support Services to provide support for identified students in speech & language, behaviour and hearing impairment.

Students at Yalata Anangu School are exposed to a wide variety of special curriculum relating to cultural studies and community involvement. We access, where possible, visiting performers, artists and special guests to enhance and broaden student knowledge. The 2-Way science program allows all students to access the science curriculum relevant to their culture and 'on country' learning is a part of this program.

Yalata Anangu School employs a consistent approach to teaching literacy and numeracy across the site. Junior Primary and Middle Primary use the Little Learners Love Literacy, Heggerty and Words their Way synthetic phonics programs to support literacy, Upper Primary and Junior Secondary literacy programs include Heggerty's and Words their Way. MultiLit is a program used to target identified groups of students to improve outcomes for students from Upper Primary through to Secondary.

Staff are provided opportunities to undertake training and development in all areas related to methodology and curriculum in support of the Site Learning Plan.

Each classroom has a Sound Field System installed and teachers use the microphone when delivering instructions to the class, this supports all listeners. Each class also has Interactive Whiteboards that teachers utilise for all curriculum areas.
